Yearbook

Published Annually

By the Senior Class of

Mount Saint Mary's College

Los Angeles, California

Theme

What is a puzzle? A puzzle unsolved is a challenge; a puzzle complete is an achievement. Life is a puzzle. Putting its pieces together—not just any way, but the right way—is a challenge.

During our years at the Mount we work at this puzzle by assimilating the correct spiritual, intellectual and social experiences so that we may become the women we are meant to be.

Through the pages of MOUNT '59 our experiences are relived in pictures and words so that the challenge which we accept — the achieving of Christian womanhood — will be demonstrated.

Dedication

The Senior Class of 1959

dedicates MOUNT '59

to the memory of Pius XII, Pope of Peace, with the hope that our work to order the world of our own lives will be reflected in a world order—a world peace.

An abstract geometric composition featuring a large cyan rectangle on the left side of the page. To its right, there is a large black rectangle. Below the black rectangle, there is a black shape with a diagonal cut on its right side. A thin black vertical bar is on the far left. A horizontal cyan bar is at the bottom right. The background is a light cream color.

Almost beginners in puzzle solving, we needed help.

With the guidance and instruction of the Faculty we shaped the framework of our puzzle.

Studies

Science

Students listen intently as Father O'Reilly illustrates Charles' Law of Constant Pressure.

Students of General Life Science discover new facts about living matter.

Joan Wombacher and Carolyn Rodriguez wait and hope for the desired reaction.

The systematized knowledge of organic and inorganic matter aids you to develop an understanding and appreciation of the glory of creation.

Guided by Mr. Arai, Mary Anne Wormsted examines cells through a microscopic lens.

Upper division history students prepare for the activities of United Nations Week.

You realize the importance of the facts and events of yesterday and today, together with their causes and effects.

History. Economics. Business Administration

Freshmen take notes as Sister Rose Catherine discusses the reasons for the disintegration of the Roman Empire.

Business Administration students master the keyboard through frequent practice. Knowledge and efficiency are their goals.

Art

You realize that art is "the right making of that which needs to be made" and because you must, you make it.

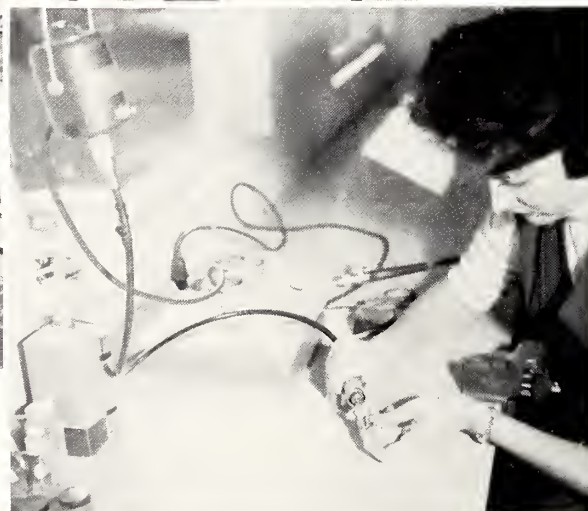

The cultural contributions of art through the ages are made apparent through visual aids and the interpretation of the instructor.

The discovery in the ceramics lab that you could create with your hands was an exciting one.

Under the direction of Miss Shepherd, the art majors work at their easels.

Connie Herman adds final touches to modernistic pin in jewelry-making class.

You discover the wonders of literature through reading and the elation of creating through writing. You receive insights into the thoughts and times of past and present.

A panel discusses the works of Hemingway and his particular techniques of writing.

English

Students exchange ideas concerning the trends in American poetry.

Among their other functions, the journalism class proofreads the next issue of the VIEW.

You gain experience at Regis House, working with children. You care for them and provide the understanding that is so necessary for their growth and development.

Sociology and Social Welfare

Mathematics

You accept the challenge of today and become a Math major. You know the satisfaction of a problem correctly solved.

You stepped into the realm of music and found a world of ordered harmonies, rhythms, and beats. A pleasure that can only come through music was yours whether you listened, played, or sang.

Sociology majors seek answers to the questions arising in their study of Population Problems.

A local opera workshop entertains Mount students.

Music

Mr. Paul Salamunovich accompanies choral members in preparation for entertainment at the Christmas Assembly.

Language

It is within your power to foster better relations between peoples. You try to do this through the study of nations, language and culture.

Sister Eloise Therese conducts an elementary Spanish class.

Student teacher, Elsie Szandy stimulates her reading group as witnessed by their eager response.

Education

As you are being taught you are learning to teach. You realize the value of education and anxiously await the time when you will stand before a class.

Time out from the classroom is spent by student teacher Carol Robinson in supervising play.

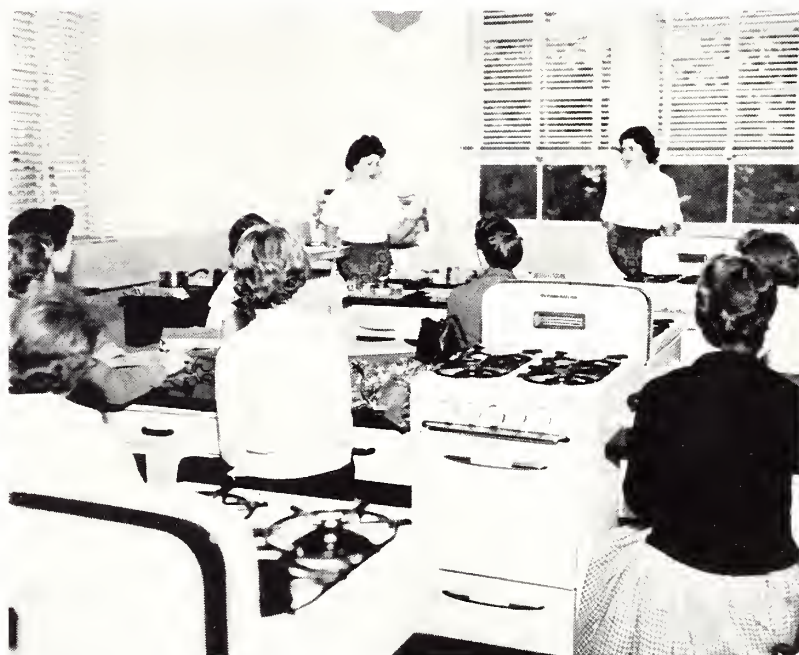

You acquaint yourself with the various philosophers of the Roman nation as you discuss their literary works in your Latin class.

Home Economics

As a dietician, food demonstrator, or home maker you play an important role in American society.

Students take turns giving an original demonstration in the cooking class.

Miss Grace Trumbo guides future seamstresses in sewing lab.

From a speech or drama class you may graduate to a starring role in a Mount play. Through your drama courses you develop poise and self-assurance.

Drama

Stagecraft students learn make-up techniques and employ them during staging of fall play, MEDEA.

Advanced drama students Dora Szabo and Barbara Clem enact a scene from O'Neill's "Mourning Becomes Electra."

Student, Diane Gisler, reads a selection for her Interpretative Reading class to criticize.

Physical Education

By learning the basic rules and steps to group sports you develop sportsmanship as well as self-confidence.

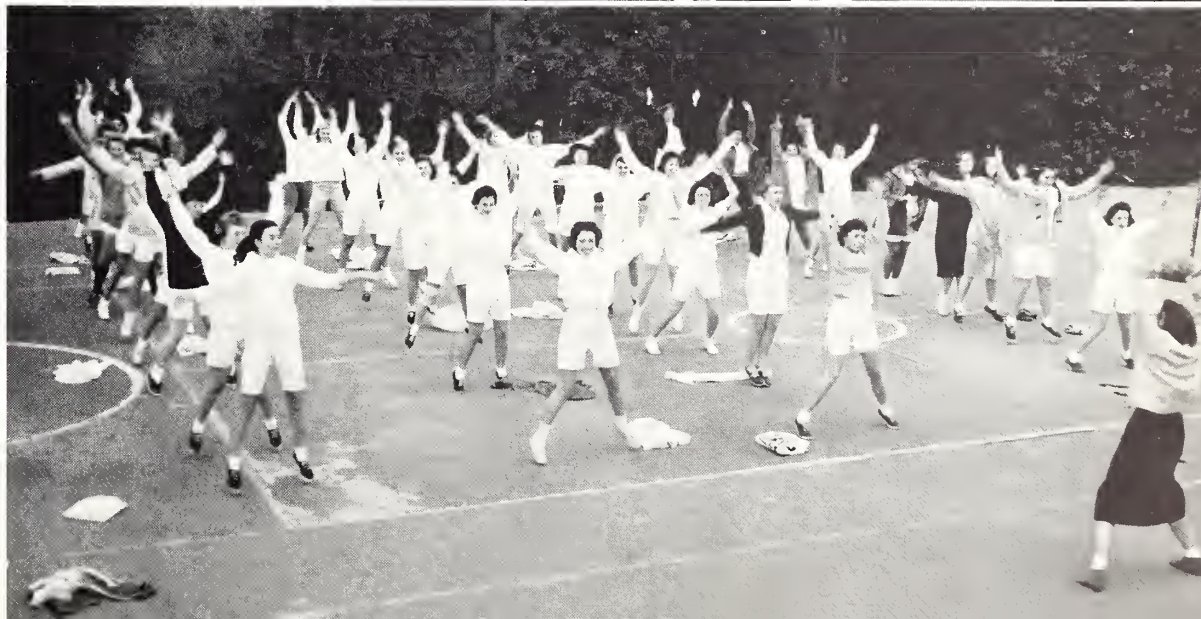

Three freshmen take advantage of a beginner's bowling class offered by the Physical Education department.

Miss Blackstone lectures to the tennis class concerning the scoring of mixed doubles.

Physical Education class exercise — in unison?

To know, love and serve God —this is the aim of your life. You are guided toward this goal through your theology class, a very important subject in the curriculum.

Theology

Father Wall conducts a sophomore theology class.

Mr. Patrick Hughes answers the questions of his students in the History of Modern Philosophy class.

Philosophy

You ask questions about causes; about the beautiful; and about yourself. You discover where to find the answers through your study of philosophy.

Sister Corneila Mary questions the Scholastic argument for freedom of the will.

You find satisfaction in giving.
 You desire to help those in pain.
 Your life is dedicated to God and to man.

Nursing

Sophomore nursing students make friends with a new patient.

Diane Souva makes a patient comfortable.

Nursing students study administrative duties as well as practical nursing.

By You

Excerpt from "Psalm 151"

Carlisle Van Horne

With thanks for a work that stays in my mind
I like that literary piece, Lord, There's a green world in it.
Not just green acreage — any nature boy
Can write on that a dozen lines a minute;
Put a bluebird in it if you're out for joy,
Put in a haystack if you're out for plot,
Put in a dead tree if you're out for thought . . .

Childhood

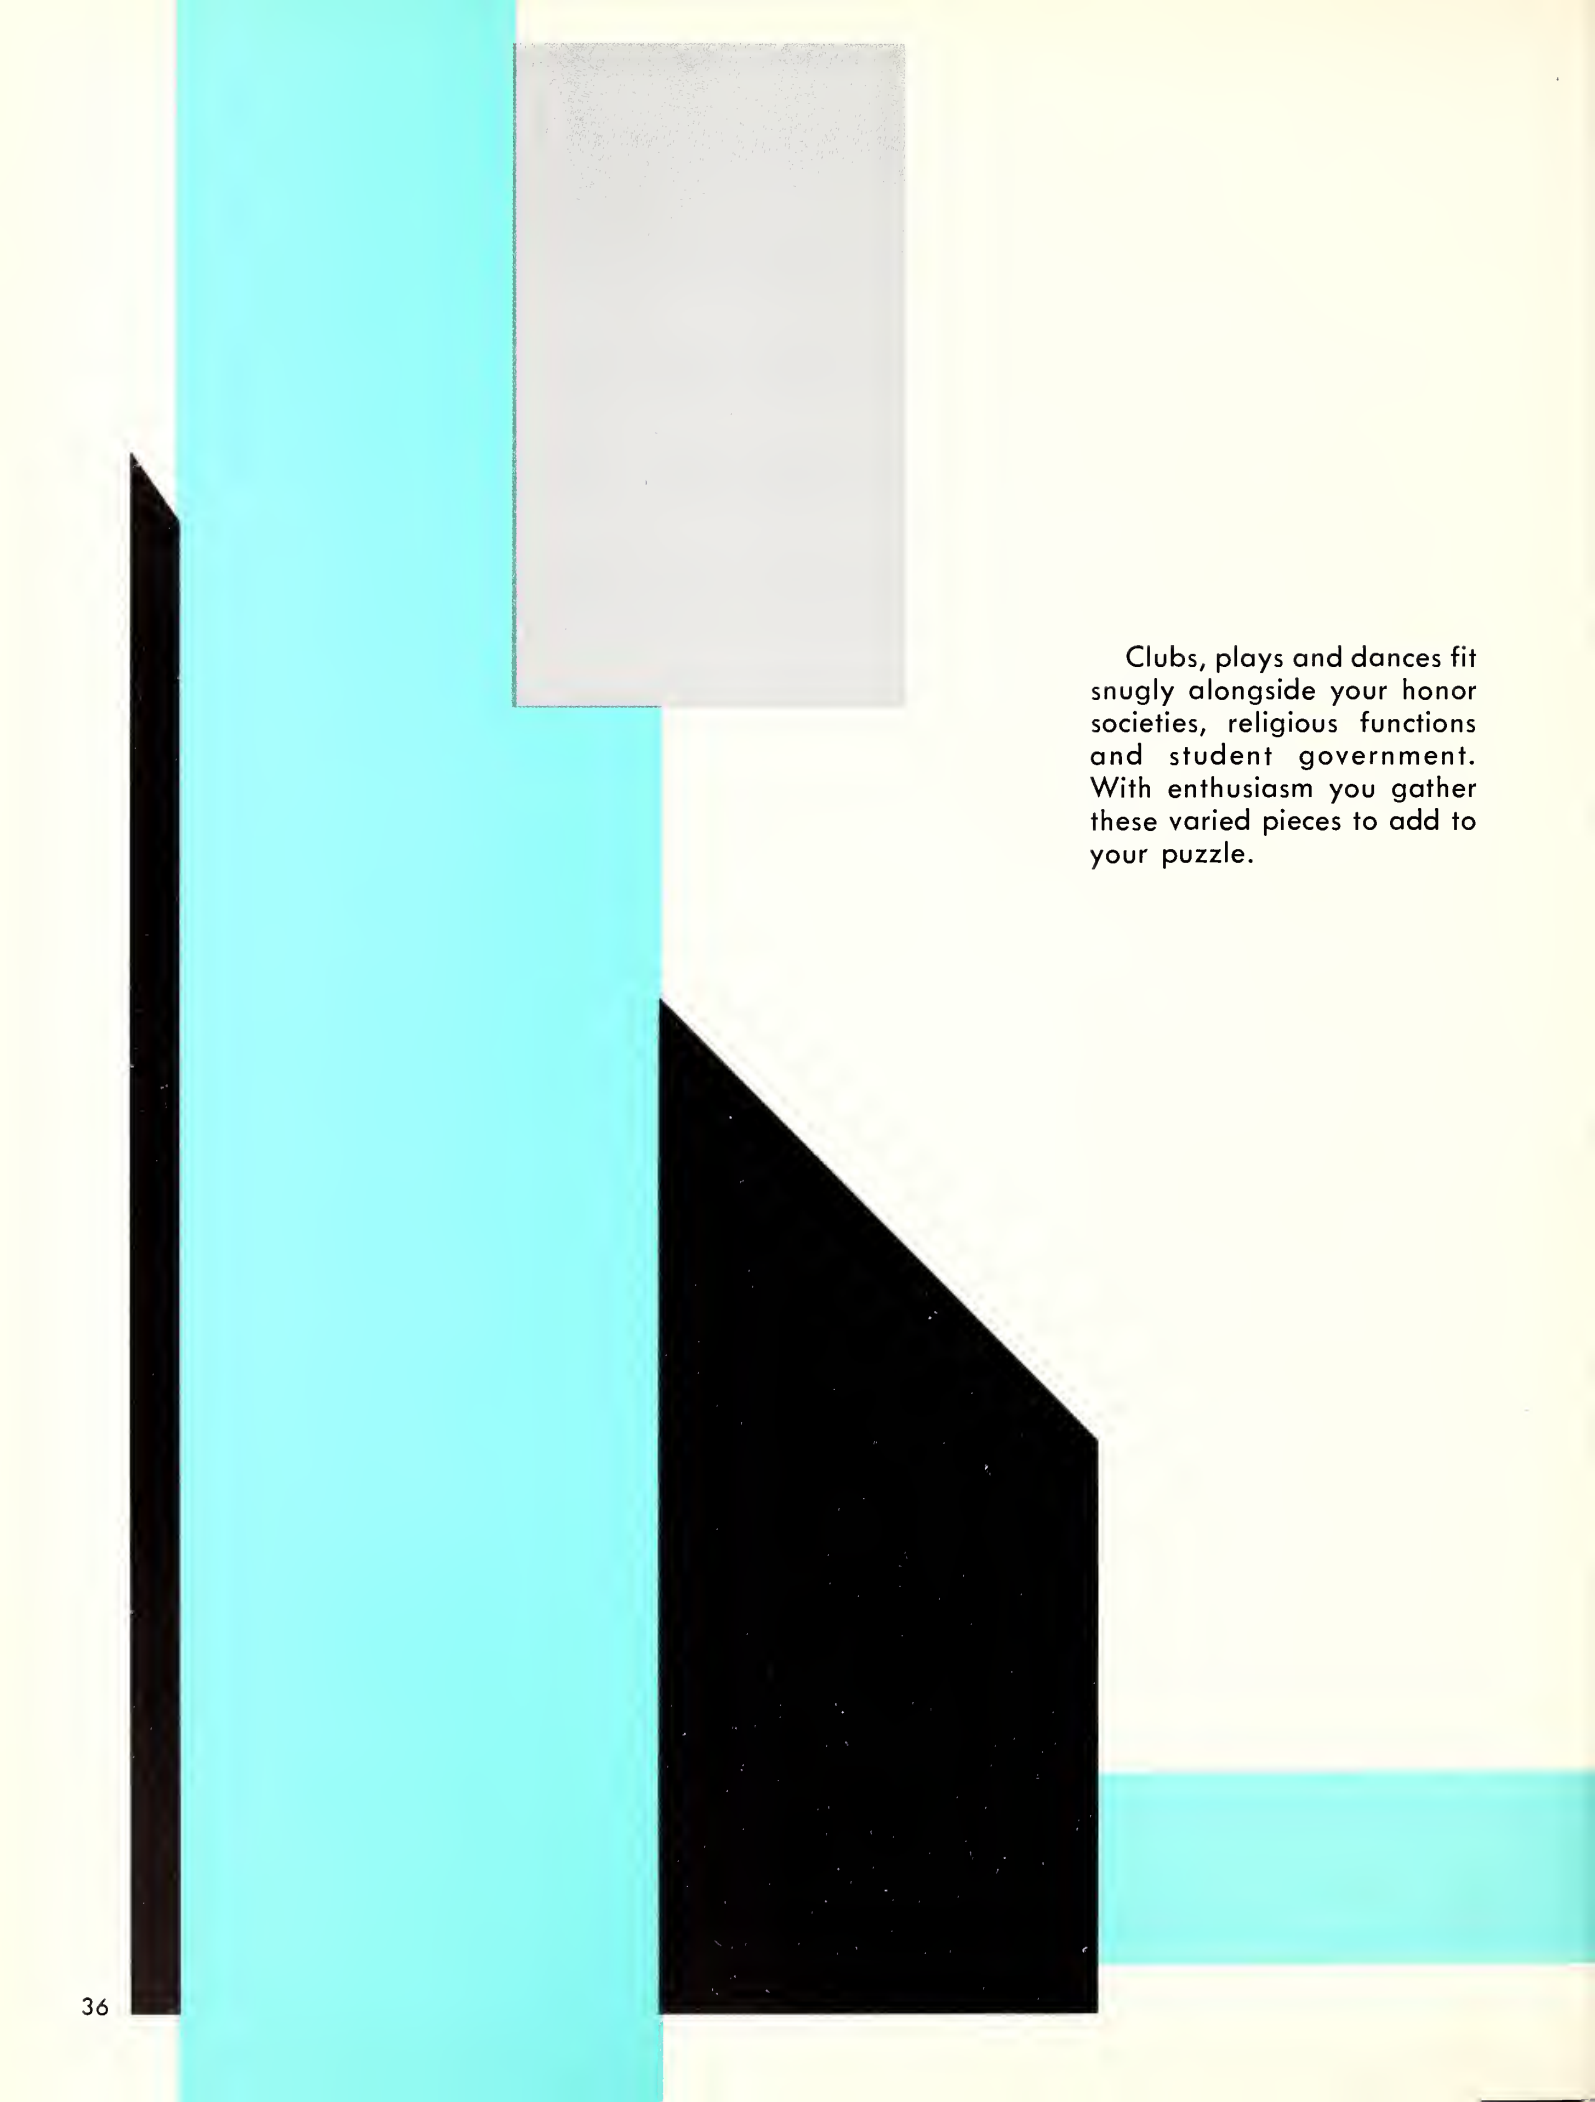

Miriam Tse

The hours of make believe
Flow out
In deepening streams.
The years of reality
Hurry in
with turbulent peaks.
That seagull
Black against the blue
Flaps heavily at my heart.

Cousin

Ann DeVaney

With this ring
 My father's showy, shiny sharp
 Cigar wrapper
You are my pal
To fight, to race, to climb and
To listen.
Come
We will put our soldiers on
The big rock
 (They rust unused.)
With this ring,
 The dime store's silver
 Forget-me-nots,
You are my friend
To swim, to sail, to sing, and
To listen.
Come.
We will skip flat rocks
across the water.
 (They collect untouched.)
With this ring,
 The final separate band you do not give
 To me,
We are unloosed
And forget
To listen.
 You give the gaudy cigar bands
 To your children.

Joan Wombacher and Sister Alice Marie thank philosopher Anton Pegis for his lecture to the Student Body.

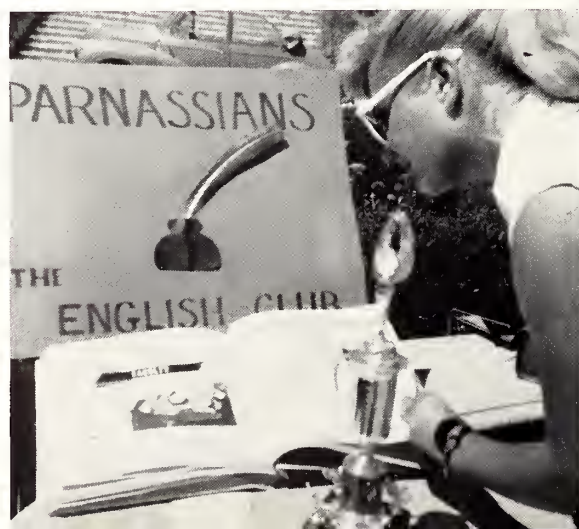

Dr. Kuehnelt-Leddihn emphasizes, in one of a series of lectures, that the Far East is not a lost cause.

Guest Speakers

Orientation Day

Departmental clubs, Student Body organizations and sororities held orientation displays in order that you might select the organizations that suited your special interests.

You were selected to appear in the publications "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities" on the basis of scholarship, personality, activities, and service to the school.

Honor Graduates

As honor graduates you have maintained laudable academic achievement over a four year period in your respective fields of Chemistry, English, Art and Languages.

NSA

National Students Association served you through
 ... representation on a national and international scale
 ... training student leaders
 ... improving the intellectual climate on campus
 ... effective measures toward solution of student problems.

Resident Students

The verve and imagination of Dianne Smith, boarder president and Colleen Wilson, vice-president, produced well organized, unforgettable events.

Your home away from home buzzed with chatter, laughter and a napping roommate until the 7:30 study bell. Then only clacking typewriters, an occasional stifled laugh and the feeling of belonging filled your room.

You solve the boarder's dilemma of neatly moving suitcases, typewriters, books and clothes into your room on the first day. Hustle-bustle days that followed told of your success in keeping this peace and order.

Patiently, you wait for a slim chance to make or receive that all important phone call.

"Mail call," two magic words you listened for all morning, came true at noon.

At your Halloween social night, you previewed the latest in costume capers and combined the tricks with the treats.

Resident Students

Carla Cosgrove, Marie Treacy, Mary Flanagan, Barbara Merandi and Jan Fox enjoy cake at-a-come-as-you-are birthday party.

An informal party provided the perfect occasion for decorating the Christmas tree. The picture (below) attests to the many hands that added tinsel.

A comfortable place to relax and laugh at a good comedy show is your newly decorated lounge. Smiling faces provide proof of comedian's ability.

You held your annual Presents in the Regency Room of the Sheraton-West Hotel and posed for your sorority picture. Westwords

You moved into a new adventure when you published the new quarterly—WESTWORDS.

You collected and counted thousands of words in prose and poetry written by students in all majors.

And when you read the first copy you had the satisfaction of a pioneer.

Editors-in-Chief, Rosemary Orsini and Elizabeth Matz, proudly read first issue of WESTWORDS.

Associate Editors, Paula Duncan, Dianne Smith, Peggy Leary and Dora Szabo listen as Associate Editor, Connie Serbent (seated) discusses ideas for the Spring issue.

The View

Before the "baby is put to bed" and the press begins to roll; behind that peaceful stack of VIEW's in the foyer, cafeteria, or library are many hours of planning, writing, running, and worrying.

You know because you do the planning, writing, running and worrying.

Judy Weber Heads New VIEW Staff

Judy Weber has been selected VIEW editor for the year 1959. In order to augment the staff the VIEW has assigned new members and inaugurated a new term of editorship. Judy will serve as editor for the next two semesters. New editors will then be appointed January instead of every May.

Judy, a member of the junior class, is a graduate of Corvallis High School. She has been editor of the past three years in the capacity of news editor of the VIEW. Judy, a member for the past year as feature editor and business manager. She is an active member in the Education minor. She is an active member in the Education minor.

Judy will continue as news editor for the new term, and will be on page one of the VIEW for the next two years. She is majoring in Education and minoring in Journalism.

Mount 59

You started planning for it early in the summer.

You learned new terms, new methods, and new pains.

You worked and worked because you knew that the students' delight and the finished work would be your reward.

Freshman Reigns as Loyola Homecoming Queen

You built a float, rode in a parade or just watched it. You were filled with the spirit of Homecoming and furnished Loyola University with its Queen and one Princess. Queen Sheila Curran and Princess Pam Foley had fun — you had fun because Homecomings are fun.

"Hail, hail the gang's all here" at Seniors Christmas party.

Shirley Briggs receives her ticket for "South Seas Adventure" from Gloria Travaglini at a memorable Senior Night Out.

"Psychiatry in Modern Life", the Senior Panel topic, provided ideas for stimulating discussion. Other panels were held on Christian Marriage, the Right to Work Law, and Capital Punishment.

Life at a Luau—this was your evening for Hawaiian war chants and Conga lines.

Father Edward J. Collins, O.M.I.,
Retreat Master, addresses Student Body at the first of many conferences.

Retreat

Each year you set aside three days in which to do spiritual inventory.
You found in Father Collins a Retreat Master who helped you to put your accounts in order.

Your campus provides excellent surroundings and the proper solitude in which to make a good retreat.

You found spiritual reading a great help in making your retreat. You took advantage of the time between conferences to read.

"Our View"

The smoker is the place to hold intellectual discussions, or better still, to play bridge — with help from onlookers, of course.

Nurses take time out from their busy schedules for a moment of relaxation in the patio.

Acknowledgments

The Editors and staff of MOUNT '59 wish to express our sincere thanks to the S. K. Smith Company for our Smith-Crafted cover. We appreciate the time spent and the helpful suggestions given to us.

Also, we would like to express our appreciation to Mirro-Graphic Yearbooks and especially to Mr. Hopkins for his sincere interest in the production of this book.

To Crowley-Smith Photography belongs the gratitude of each member of the staff. Mr. Smith, in particular, we wish to thank for his willingness to go anywhere at any time to capture this past year in pictures. Without his help, this book would not be.
